Dear Father Boyle,

Thank you for all you have done for so long, for so many. From what I have been told you have not only exemplified the exhortations of St. Ignatius to "be a man for others," but have added the words "and do your good works in a quiet way."

It would be no small accomplishment to get the lion to lie down with the lamb. But you really have outdone that for many years by getting academics to lie down with arbitrators, arbitrators to lie down with unions, unions to lie down with management, etc.

Of all I have heard about you, the greatest sense of awe comes from your ability to get folks working together for the common good. This single concept has profound implications for our home, neighborhood, cities, states and nations.

Thank you for your life in Boston. Thank you for your life's work. Thank you for the power of your example, a wise and gentle man in a troubled world.

*May God grant
you His peace.*

Warm regards,
